Sees Duty to Her Country

Lynda Roberts Joins Women's Air Force

"Everyone has a duty to his country" so says Lynda Roberts, pretty 18-year-old brunette as she prepares to leave Jan. 19 for Lackland Air Force Base in Texas to begin her basic training with the Women's Air Force (WAF).

Lynda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Roberts, 1926 Amapola is a 1967 graduate of Torrance High School. In school, she was a member of the drill team and has served as flag twirler with the Torrance Youth Band.

She was aided in making her decision by her 15-year-old sister, Penny, a sophomore at Torrance High, who thinks "joining the Air Force is a great idea."

Her love of country and her willingness to serve is not new to Lynda. Ever since her mother's brother was shot down over the Baltic in World War II, Lynda has had the urge to "do something."

After her decision, her first step was to visit T/Sgt. Don Yeaman, 1616 Cabrillo, Torrance, recruiter for the United States Air Force. After many tests and interviews with WAF Selection Officer and Col. Beaver, commander of the Recruiting Headquarters in Los Angeles, Lynda will be inducted Jan. 19.

"It's a great opportunity for professional training, and I am hoping to train in aircraft control training," said the Torrance High graduate. "I am looking forward to my first permanent assignment, which comes after six weeks of military orientation at Lackland."

And again, Torrance can be proud of its teenagers, many of whom are serving their country here and abroad.

Answers The Call

Lynda Roberts and her recruiting officer T/Sgt. Don Yeaman invite others to "Join Up Now" with the United States Air Force. Lynda leaves Jan. 19 for Lackland AFB for six weeks of military orientation.

Modern Symphonic Music Topic

Committee Lecture Series

A new community service will be sponsored by the Peninsula Committee for the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra beginning Jan. 17. It consists of three lectures, given at Marymount College lounge, on Jan. 17, Feb. 7 and 21, from 10 a.m. until noon, designed to enlighten and enrich the listeners to modern symphonic music. These lectures will especially concentrate on the works of three modern composers — Hindemith, Bartok, and Stravinsky — which will be performed by the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra in the 1968 Philharmonic Season.

Mrs. Herbert J. Jones and Mrs. Robert D. Fisher, of Palos Verdes, co-chairmen of the event, state that Jeanne Weaver Fuller, a prominent leader in the music community, will co-ordinate the three lectures and has chosen two outstanding women in the music field to speak. One of them is June Lusk Nelson, a concert pianist as well as an instructor of piano at El Camino College and a one-time Fulbright Scholar, studying in Cologne, Germany.

Also speaking is Barbara Mabin, founder-director of the Los Cancioneros, a community choral group; she is currently obtaining her Masters Degree of Music at California State College at Long Beach. Mrs. Jeanne Fuller, an instructor in music at El Camino College, is a contributor of articles on contemporary music to the "Music Educators Journal" and "Choral Journal."

The main purpose of this symposium is to explain the elements in modern music as well as point out the aspects of perceptive listening. Mrs. Fuller says that stress will be put on the three composers' works which will be performed on three separate occasions at the Music Center.

These are examples of compositions by composers, who produce new and unusual works, music which requires more than just one listening and a glance at the program notes. The lectures will be enhanced by excerpts on the piano from the symphonies discussed.

Anyone wishing to participate in the lecture series may contact Mrs. Herbert J. Jones at P. O. Box 65, Palos Verdes Estates.
